

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

IN the preparation of the second edition of the Register, the whole of the ground covered by the first edition has been revised, and the entries of the last ten years (1894-1904) have been added. In spite, however, of exhaustive searching in Lists and Directories of all kinds, it is only too obvious that there are still many names to which but little record is attached. Since the publication of the former edition, records of the doings of Old Malvernians have as far as possible been kept, and it is hoped that a good deal written on the early entries will be found to be new. The Editor, however, feels that even the entries of the last ten years are not as complete as they might be—a state of things largely due to the indifference with which the circular was received in some quarters; this has given an increased amount of work which should have been quite unnecessary.

The Editor is extremely grateful for the kind words of encouragement sent by Old Malvernians from all parts of the world, as well as for many useful suggestions. Some of the latter have been embodied in the present issue; others, unfortunately, could not be made use of, either from lack of space or for other reasons. It was thought to be unnecessary to publish detailed lists of Old Malvernians in the Army, Navy, and other professions—especially as it is believed there is in course of preparation, from another pen, a list of Old Malvernians serving in the Army, and other leaflets may soon be forthcoming.

In conclusion, the Editor wishes to take this opportunity of thanking a large number of Malvernians for interesting information of themselves and their contemporaries, and in particular, Mr. H. Kempson, Hon. Sec. of the Old Malvernian Society, who has rendered the utmost assistance to the Editor by the loan of old lists and Malvernians, and who has been as indefatigable as successful in finding addresses; also Mr. H. A. Drew (O.M.) for many corrections and additions to the first edition, and Mr. H. G. C. Salmon for help in revising the proofs.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

A GLANCE at this work will show that it professes to be a School Register of Malvern College, and that it contains, besides an article on the School Sports, an Introduction in its front from a pen that is quite capable of writing it. It seems that it must have a Preface also. There is a rage, we are told, in these introspective days, for Prefaces and Prologues. No book that respects itself, not even a book of reference, can dispense with its Preface. It is a noble rage, but one a little difficult to understand, more difficult still to defend. Good wine needs no bush ; and if the wine is bad, no bush—not the thickest and the most flowering—will carry that wine off. Perhaps a Preface to a School Register is less unintelligible than many : at least in this particular case there is something for the Preface to say.

The authorities, who had to weigh the expediency of publishing this Register, may very well have spent some anxious time on the consideration. Many Schools have issued similar Registers during the last ten or fifteen years. One shelf of the Library in a certain Cathedral minster is nearly filled with such School Registers. Thirty years ago that shelf would have harboured no such inmates ; either it would have stood empty, or it would have contained classics of rare edition, such as a bibliopole values, but values too much to open. Well, there the Registers are; and they are Registers of distinguished Schools, too, of Schools second to none—not even to each other. A body could not err, one might think, in following their precedent. By all means, therefore, let us register! But it occurs to one, on reflection, that after all these Registers have only just been published, only yesterday, as it were. Perhaps it is a school that celebrates its centenary, bicentenary, quingentenary, what not? that is to say, it is half as old—to deal liberally with fractions—half as old as the hills under which it nestles. Hundreds of years old, it is only just issuing its Register. Are we wise, have we reason in following a precedent which founds itself on a life already some hundred years old? The point required consideration, and no doubt met with it. The writer of this Preface is of opinion that the decision was right, that it was not presumption, but prudence, which determined that—thus early in its life—a Register of Malvern College should be issued.

And this for two reasons. In the first place, with every year that elapses the difficulty increases of obtaining information. While some pupils have impressed their track so broadly and deeply on the great world's soil that a child could follow them, others have shown a truly Indian cunning in obliterating all marks whatever of their trail. What does one consult a School Register for? Not, surely, to find a name, not even one's own; but to find something out about the name in which one is interested. A page that proffers names only, mere nominum umbra, is as sawdust in the mouth. Well might it be asked, what's in a name—or, indeed, in a thousand names? There is perhaps, in very old Registers, a fantastic pleasure in tracking the identity of a name that is spelt in ten or a dozen ways; but even that ghostly interest is lost as times become more modern. But an intelligent curiosity demands more than names. "What is said of so-and-so? What did he do at school? What honours blushed upon him? Is he duly chronicled as the Captain of this, the Prefect of that? What path in life felt his solid feet? And feeds he still on the upper air?" These are the questions revolving in our mind when we turn the pages of a School Register; and if such questions are to be answered, the Register must not wait a hundred years, till facts are forgotten, and there is not even enough interest to dispute about them.

Secondly, a Register like this, if wisely headed by an Introduction which every sensible reader will study, tells all that need be told of the history of the School. If one thinks of it, how few Old Boys, much fewer young ones, know anything whatever of the history of that School which they adorn! They don't know because they have not asked, and they have not asked because there was no one to tell them. But your intelligent alumnus, the alumnus of your ideals, wants to know particulars, and, above all, early particulars: how his beloved School came to be where it is, came to be what it is, grew, flourished, suffered its killing frosts and the furious Dog-star's rages, and, in fact, all about it. The elder Schools go too far back into the mists of Time for this; no one could dig up the details of their infant days now, supposing one wished to know them. The patriotic schoolboy of the older foundation trolls out his "Exornabit nostram Spartam": praise him for his tuneful voice, if you like; for his well-stored memory; for his esprit de corps; but do not examine him about his Sparta! Do not ask him too many questions about his beloved School! Suppose you asked him how many Ephors his Sparta used to appoint when it was young, what Helots it had, and what became of its Helots, it is a chance if he would sing his Carmen after your examination in such perfect tune as before. The fact is, he can tell you little about his School, because no one knows more than he does. But take your Sparta, just grown up and mature, and with reasonably full information register its early citizens; add to this Register an Introduction which shall tell you how it grew and broadened and developed into the Sparta which it now is, and then you may fairly ask your intelligent alumnus—when you catch him—all the searching questions an examiner can devise. In a word, this little work professes to be, of its sort, complete and exhaustive; and the alumnus who does not study its pages, and absorb its contents, and return a reasonable answer to every reasonable question that can be asked about it, is no alumnus Malvernensis.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

THE first edition of the Malvern Register contained a quantity of most valuable and interesting introductory matter, which many Malvernians would gladly have seen preserved in the present edition. It has, however, been found impossible to fall in with this desire without unduly increasing the size and price of the book. When the time comes for a regular history of the School to be written, recourse will no doubt be had to this material. Meanwhile, the chronological summary which follows contains, it is hoped, a fairly complete record of the most important events of our first forty years.

The lists which precede and follow the Register proper shew the progress made by the School on the intellectual and athletic sides of its life, and the immense additions which from time to time have been made to its equipment. Special mention should, however, be made here of the energy and generosity of Mr. Gray, the fourth Headmaster, to whom are due amongst other things the inception of the Chapel Fund, the Chemical Laboratory, and the Grundy Library; and even the shortest summary of the athletic life of the School would be incomplete if it did not acknowledge the invaluable services rendered almost from the foundation of the College by the Rev. Henry Foster, to whose initiative many of the most important additions to and improvements of the "plant" are to be ascribed; much, too, of the conspicuous success which has attended Malvernians at cricket and other games in recent years must in all justice be attributed to the ceaseless vigour, perseverance, and insight of Mr. Charles Toppin, whose arrival in 1886 was the signal for a rapid and lasting progress in every branch of athletics. Last, but not least, comes the Old Malvernian Society, which was founded in 1894 to further the interests of the School, and is fulfilling its object right nobly. It is impossible to overrate the importance of this great organised body of "old boys," which has invariably shewn itself ready to lend its support to every endeavour made to improve the position of our "Alma Mater," acting in the spirit of our noble motto, "Sapiens qui prospicit."

THE CRICKET GROUND IN THE SIXTIES.

“ From the point of view of elaborate cricket, it was not very promising, and when we came to try it, there were difficulties. In those early days the cricket field of the Summer Term was the football field of the Winter, and it was bounded by a road running south to north from a point only a few yards east of No. 5 House to a point just below No. 1. Imagination, in Latin and Greek and other languages, was much studied at Malvern in those days, but no imagination could conceive of this field as other than unhappily narrow and circumscribed. Being thus limited in dimension, nature had also chosen to lay it down at an acute angle. It was not that it sloped here and there, but that it sloped everywhere. Therefore no wise man contended that, for purposes of pure cricket, it was beyond criticism. Nevertheless, like many other unpromising things, it proved better than its promise. It had its defects, but it had its compensation also. It soon turned out that the natives had an advantage over outsiders, though the level sward of present times was not then general; still a slope quite as evident as ours was rare. If the enemy was beaten, he had something to remark about the pitch. I think we mostly won our matches: no doubt we did not search for the strongest enemies we could find. But an enemy retiring in defeat sometimes so far forgot the conventions of fine breeding as to murmur something about playing on the roof of a house. But no one was troubled by these murmurs. A generous victor will allow his enemy to say anything. It was really a pretty question whether the acute angle helped to make a future bowler or to mar him. Did it suggest to him, by what actually took place, the advantages of a sharp break, and so incline him to obtain by his own exertion a similar break on more level pitches? Or did it satisfy him too soon by what it gratuitously offered him, and so incline him to rest on his oars before the boat had got under weigh. Utrum horum? But, good or bad, promising or malignant, it was all we had, and it served its purpose. The early Elevens, in both Cricket and Football, were not fine gentlemen, nor dainty critics: they loved sport, and they enjoyed it here, turning into a merry jest what might have been held a serious drawback. Perhaps a good ball missed the wicket; perhaps a man in the long field misjudged a catch; and the slope was at fault. What matter? It will be a bad day when a Briton is forbidden to grumble."
